

considering what effect it will have upon Wall Street."

Disgusted With Lawson.

"This Lawson affair disgusts me. I despise these sensational fakers. The remark made by Mr. Lawson that if in case this investigation was pushed it would be impossible to secure a quorum in either the Senate or House would lead one to suppose that there was not an honest man in either branch of Congress."

"It disgusts me that a creature of this low type would make such a statement. I am surprised that the press would take up the bellowings of this ass."

Borah Offers Explanation.

Following Senator Stone's speech Senator Borah asked to see the newspaper clippings.

"This is a mistake," said Borah, "the article reads U. S. Stone. I venture the following solution: The article 'faintly intended to state, 'U. S. Steel,' an error in transmission made it U. S. Stone."

Senator Borah's solution brought forth applause from both the floor and galleries of the Senate.

Lawson telling newspaper men of his conference with Chairman Henry emitted none of the sparks that are supposed to go with his utterances, but weighed his words very carefully and lighting a cigar, seriously discussed the alleged "leak" which he has been called to Washington to explain.

Mr. Lawson said he had asked his secretary to arrange for him a meeting with Congressman Wood who introduced the resolution providing for a probe of the alleged "leak" which caused the flurry in the stock market at the time of President Wilson's note.

Mr. Lawson also intimated that he would see Congressman Henry again, probably before he leaves Washington.

To Issue Formal Statement.

Lawson said that a formal statement might be expected from him later in the day, "some time before dinner."

He then said he had several persons to see during the afternoon, and that "I may have promised them that I would say nothing about our meeting, although I am not saying that."

Referring to Mr. Lawson's statement yesterday that he was not sure whether his coming would be taken seriously or as a joke, the financier said:

"Oh, yes, I am satisfied now that this matter is being taken seriously. I might say I am fully satisfied I am putting in my time well in staying around Washington, although this is a mighty busy day on the stock exchange, and I ought to be there."

Henry Ready to Listen.

"I didn't know whether I was going to be a sort of martyr this morning or not, but I found the chairman very ready to listen, and I told him things which any man with intelligence would know before looking into it, and Mr. Henry is a man of more than average intelligence."

All the time he talked Mr. Lawson stood erect with a military sort of bearing and parried every question that bore too directly on the exact details of the conversation he had with Mr. Henry.

Mr. Lawson came from his hotel in a taxicab, arriving at Mr. Henry's office exactly at 10:30 o'clock. Punctually is one of his strong points. Before entering the Capitol he stopped for several newspaper photographers, and when he left motion picture camera men asked him to stop again.

Feeling His Force.

Sure, that's the best thing I did, come along."

and he went to the east center of the Capitol and went through all the spaces they requested him to. He was dressed in a quiet, black business suit and wore a black tie, in which was an inconspicuous black pearl, said to be one of the finest specimens obtainable and to be worth $5,000 to $10,000. About the only person who seemed to know him in the Capitol corridor was a seedy, bearded man who followed him up to Chairman Henry's door and asked a watchman there:

"Is that there fellow Lawson in there?"

With which he tried to enter. He was told the conference was private.

"Ain't they gonna be no speakin'?" he inquired. "I thought that fellow came down here to make a speech before Congress."

May See Others.

Mr. Lawson said he was going to return to his hotel, and this afternoon hoped to see the other persons whose names he declined to tell. He was asked what Chairman Henry thought about the chances of reporting out the resolution providing for the probe of the alleged "leak."

"Well, I guess Henry didn't get a chance to say much," he said. "You see, I did most of the talking. When I get a chance to gab I make a good job of it."

DOG CATCHER ALL SET.

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 2.—Had Animal Agent Richard Mansell hired at once a man who applied to him for a job as dog catcher, saying he was an expert, the new man probably would have done remarkably well.

But Mansell took his name and address, and then went to call at his home.

Mansell was attracted by loud barking in the barn, and when he investigated he found every one of the missing dogs the new man would have been employed to find.

DISCUSS LINE-UP OF MARCH 5 PARADE

Colonel Harper Calls on Military Officials to Consider Details.

REAL "TICKLISH" PROBLEM

Advisory Committee Postpones Its Report on Substitute for Inaugural Ball.

Assignments to places of military organizations in the line of the inaugural parade, one of the most ticklish of problems connected with the quadrennial fête, were discussed at length today by Col. Robert N. Harper, chairman of the committee, and War Department officials, who will direct the parade.

This is the last of the preliminary subcommittee work before the meeting of the full inaugural committee tomorrow morning.

Exactly which military organizations will appear in the civil section of the inaugural parade and which will march in those sections to be known exclusively as "military," will be decided later in the day. Colonel Harper called on Maj. Gen. Hugh L. Scott, the grand marshal; Maj. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, chief of staff for the grand marshal, and Brig. Gen. C. A. Devol, adjutant for the parade.

Heavy Expense Likely.

It will cost money to have many of the military organizations come to Washington, while others will come here at the expense of the National and State governments. Colonel Harper and the War Department officials will decide the alignment of these.

The advisory committee held its final meeting before that of the general committee, this morning. It was decided to postpone for a week, the report of the social committee, the organization which is endeavoring to provide a substitute for the inaugural ball.

What this substitute will be, and its exact nature, will not be known until the committee considers several more suggestions which have been presented.

Pageant Must Pay For Self.

The historical pageant, which has been under consideration for some time, will not be a part of the parade, unless it is self-sustaining.

"We have been unable to take any definite steps toward the formation on this," Colonel Harper said this afternoon, "because we have not been able to ascertain exactly what such a pageant will cost."

Tomorrow morning, Chairman Arthur Peters, of the finance committee, will make a report on the actual amount of money subscribed and paid to date. The last report showed that $20,000 had been subscribed. Since that time subscriptions of various amounts have come in, although exactly how many, has not been determined yet.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Washington People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Washington residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

D. H. Kinkle, Lieut. City Fire Dept., 2020 14th st. S. E., Washington, says: "I caught cold in my kidneys a year ago, and it caused backache. When I first got up in the morning, I had lameness and soreness in the small of my back. Throughout the day there was heavy, dull pain in my kidneys. I was troubled by too frequent action of my kidneys, especially at night, and I suffered from severe headaches. I had used Doan's Kidney Pills before with success, so I again got some from Haines' Drug Store. Three boxes cured me."

TO BLOCKADE ENGLAND

Germany Plans to Use Submarines, Asserts Rutherford.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—"Although it may seem the limit of preposterousness," to quote the words of Rutherford Rutherford, who started the rumor in Berlin, a submarine and Zeppelin blockade of England is supposed to be established to offset England's blockade of Germany, some day this week.

"I know a powerful fleet of submarines is being completed for this purpose. It is said the movements of the U-boats will be guided by high flying Zeppelins, both having extra sensitive wireless. It is reported that the German navy has 300 submarines in the blockade under command of Walter Forstmann, a German submarine commander who has been decorated with the order Pour le Mérite for sinking more than 100 enemy vessels."
